BANK FAILURE IN PHILA.

Real Estate Trust Co. Closes Doors.

AFTER PRESIDENT DIES

Blame for Crash Placed on Bad Investments of President Hipple, Who Made False Reports to Directors

MUCH DOUBTFUL COLLATERAL

Philadelphia, Aug. 29.—Unable to meet its obligations because of the large amount of money loaned on insufficient security by its president, now dead, the Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia, which up to last Saturday was considered one of the strongest financial institutions in the city, closed its doors. Soon after the doors were closed George H. Earle, Jr., a prominent financier, was appointed receiver. The liabilities of the company are placed at $10,000,000, against which there are quick assets of about $3,500,000 and collateral of about $8,000,000 which is not negotiable or readily convertible. The doubtful collateral is held mostly as security for loans of about $5,300,000 made to Adolf Segal, a promoter, of this city.

The man responsible for the failure was Frank K. Hipple, one of Philadelphia's best known citizens, who died suddenly last Friday morning in his country home at Bryn Mawr, near here, under circumstances which, in the light of the developments, lead to the suspicion that he may have committed suicide. Mr. Hipple, in addition to being president of the Real Estate Trust company, was treasurer of the board of trustees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States and of several other church funds, and was a director of the Franklin National Bank. Recently Mr. Hipple's accounts of the Presbyterian church were examined by certified accountants and were found to be correct, but it cannot be stated positively whether all the securities belonging to the General Assembly are intact, although it is hoped they are.

Some Bad Loans.

For the loans Hipple accepted as collateral securities of the Majestic Hotel, a big new apartment house operated by Segal; the Swedish Steel company, of Lancaster, Pa., and the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining company, of this city. The steel company and the sugar refining concern have never been placed in operation. Segal claims the collateral he gave is good, and that he will meet all his obligations. There are others to whom Hipple loaned money on insufficient security, but their names have not been made public and the sums are not believed to be large.

Falsified His Reports.

How far Hipple benefitted in the loans made or whether he was merely the tool of others is yet to be determined. All the directors are remaining silent on that point, and also on the question of whether there will be any criminal prosecutions. In order to hide the true condition of the company and save himself Hipple resorted to the falsification of his reports, which were accepted as true by the directors. He used what the receiver termed a "double system" of making reports. When the state bank examiner called Hipple presented to him good securities to offset the loans made, and when the president made his reports to the directors he would show them a bunble of other securities and other paper, and along with these he would exhibit the certificate of the bank examiner which showed that the accounts the examiner had investigated were correct. The directors, supposing the securities shown them were the same, approved the reports.

Directors Learn True Conditions.

As soon as the directors learned of the sudden death of President Hipple they began an investigation of his affairs and were shocked when they learned the true condition of the company. This was after the close of business on Friday. A meeting of the board was hurriedly called, and it was decided to instruct the officers of the bank that all deposits received after the opening of business Saturday morning should be set aside and deposited with the Franklin National Bank in the names of the individuals presenting the money. This was done to absolve the directors from criminal proceedings for receiving money after they knew the trust company was insolvent. On Monday more than $160,000 was deposited by patrons of the bank, which was practically offset by withdrawals by persons who had heard rumors of the company's condition. The money deposited since Saturday will, however, not be returned to the depositors, but will lie in the Franklin National Bank until the courts have decided whether it should be paid back.

While the depositors were supposedly placing their money with the Real Estate Trust company the directors were making strenuous efforts to tide the institution over the difficulty. Application papers for a temporary receiver were prepared and left at the offices of the trust company, after which the directors went to the meeting of the Clearing House Association to make a last appeal for help. The directors stated that they needed $7,000,000, but the best the banks could do was to guarantee $3,500,000. This was not enough, and as all other means for getting money had failed, Vice President Houston telephoned to the bank to suspend business and send the receivership papers to court. In an incredibly short time the story was on the street and created great consternation. Hundreds of persons gathered about the building clamoring for information, and the crowd grew so great that a detail of police was sent for to clea rthe street. There was no disorder.

The application for a receiver says that the company has a paid up capital of $1,500,000, an apparent surplus of an equal amount and deposits of about $10,000,000. The assets consist of real estate in Philadelphia, loans upon collateral upon demand and on time and other securities. President Hipple, the application says, "By false reports to the directors of the loans made by him brought about the condition of the company which was first discovered by the officers of the bank subsequent to the death of the president." The court then appointed Mr. Earle receiver, and he entered security to the amount of $1,000,000.

They engaged in farming at the Branch and by their thift and industry accumulated a goodly share of this worlds goods and raised a large family of children. About six years ago Mr. Hess retired from active work, giving over the management of his farms to younger hands, and locating in Bellefonte where he lived a quiet retired life loved and respected by all who knew him.

He was a member of the Lutheran church and a christian gentleman in every sense of the word. He served several terms as school director in Ferguson township and took a great interest in the schools of that locality.

CLOSED SHOP ILLEGAL

Wisconsin Judge Deals Heavy Blow.

TO UNION LABOR

Banker Recovers $6000 Damages From Trades Labor Council and Court Holds Contract.

THE JUDGES DECISION IN PART.

Racine, Wis., Aug. 29.—Union labor was dealt a heavy blow by the decision of Circuit Court Judge Chester A. Fowler, of Fond Du Lac, in the boycott suit for $25,000 damages brought by Otto B. Schultz, a Racine baker, against the Trades Labor Council, Benjamin Dressen and others. The decision holds illegal the contract exacted from the boss bakers by the union men, in an effort to enforce the closed shop. The Trades Council and the individual members are enjoined from using the "unfair list." The boycott is declared an actionable conspiracy to accomplish a criminal or unlawful purpose; Schultz is allowed to recover damages of $2500 for the loss of profits from the time of the commencement of the boycotting acts up to the time of the trial, and $3500 in damages for the amount of injury to his business and property in relation to its selling value.

The decision in part is as follows: "All boss bakers of the city signed this agreement except the plaintiff, who has steadfastly refused to do so. Upon the plaintiff's refusing to sign, concerted attack upon his business was begun by organized labor, with the object and purpose of compelling him, against his will, to sign the contract, and has been maintained with more or less vigor up to the present time.

"The plaintiff has suffered a permanent and all but destructive injury to his business, which has been caused by the combined acts and the attitude of organized labor.

"An injury to one's business and trade is on the same footing as an injury to his tangible property, and the law furnishes a remedy for one as well as the other.

"The acts complained of are, in my view, plainly in violation of section 466 A, Wisconsin statutes of 1898, as construed by the supreme court. This statute makes any two or more persons who shall combine, associate, mutually undertake or concert together for the purpose of wilfully or maliciously injuring another in his trade or business by any means whatsoever, or for the purpose of maliciously compelling another to do or perform any act against his will, guilty of an offense punishable by fine and imprisonment."

The court declares that the contract the union sought to force on the boss bakers "was in itself an illegal contract, in that it would by its terms obligate the plaintiff to employ union labor only as distinguished from non-union labor; and it would obligate him to maintain a "closed" as distinguished from an "open" shop.

THE QUEEN OF THE MIDWAY.

Great Carnival Comes to an End With the Crowning of Miss Daisy Potter as Queen.

The Midway, which for the last week has been the social function here, closed Saturday night. Never before in the history of the town was there more interest and excitement in a home talent entertainment. It is estimated that 2000, people crowded the spacious armory. The booths and villages were generously patronized, and the dances given by the young woman on the stage were thoroughly enjoyed.

Never did any work in the interest of charity in this place end with such triumphal success as the Midway conducted for the benefit of the hospital by the women of Bellefonte. From early Saturday evening the Armory was crowded from the stage to the doors and many people were clamoring for admittance.

On other evenings of the week the Midway was closed at 10.30 o'clock, but Saturday night the crush was so great that it was long past that time before the crowd was willing to go, in fact; only when the women in charge of the various departments declared that they were entirely sold out and nothing more could be had, would the people leave. It was the biggest night of the Midway, the receipts reached $250.

In connection with the undertaking the contest for the Queen of the Midway was the most exciting feature. Friday night the two young girls who were believed to be the leaders and likely the only two who would be in the fight to a finish, jumped in count amazingly, or from less than 5000 votes to more than 11,000. But the biggest surprise came when 16-year-old Marie Gherrity, who had had less than 1000 votes, suddenly sprang into favor and when the voting closed in the evening it was found that she was in second place, with about 11,500 votes, Miss Daisy Potter in the lead.

AN EXCITING CONTEST.

All day Saturday the contest for the Queen was the main topic of conversation Friends of three girls began to get together and money was raised in such sums that when the Midway opened Saturday night it was generally known that whoever won it would have to be by getting over 25,000 votes, as the backers of the candidates were there, not with a few dollars to spend, but with hundreds, if necessary, and so fast and furious was the voting that it was with difficulty the tellers could take the money and make the count.

From the opening of the Midway until 9 o'clock the voting was open. A huge blackboard, like a broker's office, was the means used. Each contestant's name was on the board, with Vansel & Garber, brokers, in charge. The votes were not by ones, but by hundreds, and every vote was added before the eyes of all, until 9 o'clock, when the board was screened and the closing half hour the vote was in secret, so that no one knew what the vote would be or who the winner was until the entire vote was counted and announced, when it was found that Miss Daisy Potter won out with a total of 38,600 votes, against 26,728 for Miss Gherrity, and 10,486 for Miss Wallach. The total vote cast for the various candidates for queen was 78,300.

The announcement of the winner was received with cheers by the large crowd present, and promptly at 10 o'clock Miss Potter was crowned Queen of the Midway Judge Ellis Orvis made the opening address, and the crowning ceremony was performed by ex-County Treasurer William T. Speer, grotesquely attired as "Uncle Sam." The receipts from the contest were $783.14

MIDWAY A BIG MONEY-MAKER.

As a money-maker the Midway proved an unparalleled success. Never for one day did the promoters dream of making more than a few hundred dollars when the undertaking was planned, but now that the totals have been figured up the sum of $2305 is the result; and though it has been two weeks of hard work for all those taking any part in it, they feel entirely satisfied with the time and energy spent.

The sum realized will be given to the Bellefonte Hospital, an institution that has been doing a great work for the community ever since it was started, five years ago.

The great success of the Midway was due entirely to the ingenuity of the promoters in devising and planning not only the amusement features, but the contest for a queen, as well as the willing spirit and untiring zeal of all those taking any part in it.

Several weeks ago Miss Mary Blanchard, Mrs. Elizabeth Callaway and Miss Marie Meek conceived the idea and perfected the plans for holding the Midway. In their efforts they were aided by almost every public-spirited woman who was in the city and able to take part in the enterprise.

IN THE TEMPLE OF JUSTICE

August Term of Court is Now in Session.

JUDGE ORVIS PRESIDES

A Big List of Criminal Cases come up for Trial This Week—Grand Jury Kept Busy Grinding Out Indictments.

DOINGS UP TO WEDNESDAY NOON

The August term of Court opened Monday morning at ten o'clock President Judge Ellis L. Orvis on the bench. Quite a number of petitions were presented and acted upon. Guardians were appointed in various minor estate. The list of grand jurors was called over and as they answered to their names they came forward and took seats within the bar. They were sworn by Prothonotary Kimport after which the court appointed C. D. Bartholomew of Centre Hall as foreman of the Grand Jury. The Court delivered the usual instructions to grand juries after which they retired to act upon the bills presented by the District Attorney.

The report of the Constables of the different townships was then heard, after which Court adjourned until 2 p. m. Monday.

The Court convened on Monday afternoon and by this time the grand jury had acted on several bills of indictment. There are 88 criminal cases on the docket for this week.

The first case of the afternoon was the Commonwealth vs. Barney and Mary Mendleman. The charge was assault and battery and the prosecutrix was Mrs. Nellie Zeigler. She was represented by Col. E. R. Chambers, James Nolan and the District Attorney. James A. B. Miller represented the defense. The parties are from Philipsburg and it seems had engaged in a pitched battle over some hay left by some showmen. The verdict of the jury was not guilty and prosecutrix, Nellie Zeigler pay all the costs.

Commonwealth vs John Fisher charged with betrayal. Plead guilty. Una sentence imposed by the Court.

Commonwealth vs Jerome Dale and Henry Gordon. Charged with breaking into the store of Glenn & Morrison at Roland. They waived the finding of the Grand Jury and entered a plea of guilty. They were sentenced by the Court to the Huntingdon Reformatory.

On Tuesday morning the Court took up the case of the Commonweylth vs. Andrew Basilus and John Duch. The prosecutrix was Elizabeth Rossmak. The parties interested are slavic people and reside at Clarence. It seems that one night in November 1905 the two defendants borrowed a horse and buggy from Miss Rossmak and driving a short distance upset the buggy, doing considerable damage to the buggy and harness. They were arrested on the charge of larceny but the indictment was finally changed to malicious mischief and on that charge they were tried. N. B. Spangler and S. D. Gettig assisted the prosecution while Col. E. R. Chambers looked after the defendents interests. The jury found them "not guilty" but placed the costs on them.

The next case called was that of Commonwealth vs. Hilary Viard. He was charged with resisting and assaulting an officer. The prosecutor was Officer Robert Pierson, of South Philipsburg. The assault happened March 5, 1906, at South Philipsburg where all the parties reside. Spangler and Gettig assisted the District Attorney in this case while Clement Dale, J. A. B. Miller and James Nolan were the defendant's counsel. The jury returned a verdict of guilty as indicted.

Approval of Council's Action.

Our Borough Fathers not only know a good thing when they see it, but they know what is a bad thing to be seen like the obscene pictures on the bill boards about town. Every good citizen approves their decision to have them removed. It cannot be done too soon.

Our young people need no seductive education on that line.

GRANGE ENCAMPMENT AND FAIR.

The Thirty-third Annual Gathering to be Held at Centre Hall, September 15th to 21 inclusive.

The thirty-third annual Grange Encampment and Fair will be held on Grange Park, Centre Hall, September 15th to 21st inclusive. Twenty-eight acres are devoted to camping and exhibition purposes, affording manufacturers and dealers in agricultural implements and breeders of live stock an unparalleled opportunity to come in direct contact with the farmers and sell to them, establish agencies and generally advertise their products. Terms for exhibition privileges are made satisfactory to exhibitors.

The management provides stabling for live stock and a special building for poultry, also buildings for other exhibits.

Those shipping exhibits from the north and east should ship by way of Montandon, over the Pennsylvania R. One of the leading features of the fair is the elaborate exhibits in the Agricultural and Horticultural Departments. Each exhibitor in these departments will be paid a cash premium of five cents for each meritorious article placed on exhibition, the same to be paid when the exhibit is delivered.

The Pennsylvania State College occupies a large building, and annually makes a most pleasing and instructive exhibition, covering a large field of the College's work.

Each Subordinate Grange in Centre county will have headquarters under separate tents. Besides these more than one hundred tents will be erected for letting to individuals who wish a tent during the week. These tents are largely occupied by farmers and their families, exhibitors, and clubs wishing a week's outing at a nominal cost. The tents are all floored and furnished with tables and cots, leaving the tenters to furnish bedding only. The rental for the week is $3.00.

Special amusements are provided for every day and evening.

Gen. Beaver in Charge as State College Head.

In view of the conflicting statements relating to the Presidency and other important positions at The Pennsylvania State College, and in order to give the public definite information, the following official declaration is made:

General James A. Beaver, the President of the Board of Trustees, has been requested to act as President of the College for the time being, and has signified his willingness to do so.

Dr. Judson P. Welsh, formerly Principal of the Bloomsburg State Normal School, has been elected Vice-President and Financial Agent of the College, and Registrar. He is already giving attention to the details of the College work, and will remove with his family to the College probably before the first of September.

Every Department of the College is fully manned and ready for the usual work at the opening of the term, September 13th, 1906.

Present indications point to the enrollment of the largest Freshman class in the history of the College.

Serenading Felicia

By OTHO B. SENGA

Copyright, 1905, by Ruby Douglas

"Run out, children; run out and play," coaxed Felicia, "shooing" them along with the skirt of her pretty gown.

"You come, too, Aunt Fillie," begged Jimmie. "You said you'd play 'timbuktu' today."

"I'm going to be very busy this morning, Jimmie," evaded Felicia.

"Going to try on?" cried Gladys ecstatically. "Oh, do let me stay!"

"I'm not going to 'try on,' Gladys; it isn't the dressmaker who is coming," Felicia smiled happily.

The brown eyes of Bobby the adorable opened wider and then narrowed knowingly. "You goin' to have p'tic'lar comp'ny?" he demanded.

Felicia's joyous laugh rang out sweetly. "Yes, Bobby, very particular company."

"I'll bet anything it's Mr. Parker," grumbled Jimmie. "I don't want to go away if it is."

"Oh, let us stay!" cried Gladys, jumping up and down. "Mr. Parker'll want to see us—he always does. You know, Aunt Fillie," argumentatively, "he said the other day he was very fond of children."

"Yes, I know," hurriedly, "he is fond of children—good children, obedient children"—

"Then we'll thtay," agreed Donald placidly.

"Of course," assented Gladys and Jimmie, with one accord, seating themselves on the steps with cheerful alacrity.

"Come on, Bob," Jimmie added patronizingly.

But the adorable one stood aloof, regarding Felicia with gravely reproachful eyes. "Has he got somepin' p'tic'lar to say to you?" frigidly.

Felicia laughed and blushed rosily. "I think so, Bobby," gently. "Now, Jimmie," coaxingly, "you are the oldest—you ought to set the others a good example. Take them away and have them play something. I want to talk with Mr. Parker a little while, and then perhaps we'll play."

Jimmie rose grandly. "I'm most nine," importantly. "I'll boss the others. Come on, kids."

He stopped and turned to his pretty aunt with masculine superiority. "But if you're smart you won't keep Mr. Parker shut up in that dark parlor very long. I bet he drather play 'timbuktu.' Come on, Bob. What you standin' there for?"

Felicia paused on the steps and looked back apprehensively. The adorable one stood in the path, his feet planted wide apart, his hands thrust into the pockets of the recently acquired trousers and a far-away look upon his beautiful face that somehow filled Felicia's heart with foreboding. Had she known Bobby better she might have feared less—or more! She ran down the steps and laid a detaining hand on Jimmie's arm.

"Jimmie, dear," she whispered impressively, "remember that Bobby is your guest, and you must do everything you can to make him happy."

"All right," gruffly, still with a sense of being defrauded. "Come, Bobby."

"Go with the others, Bobby," coaxed Felicia alluringly; "they will show you their pets."

He brought his heaven turned eyes down to her face.

"Some day," he breathed sweetly, "I shall give you a Sarah Nade."

"So you shall, Bobby," gratefully, "whenever you wish."

Bobby skipped away, and Felicia ran singing up the steps.

"Isn't it sweet of him?" she thought. "I never heard him sing except that once at All Saints'. I don't wonder they call him the adorable one! Such a lively thought, to give me a serenade!"

"This is my dorg," introduced Jimmie proudly. "His name is Bunch o' Brightness, but we call him Bunch for every day. Get your cat, Gad. Glad's cat is a blue ribboner!"

The big, fluffy Persian was brought out for the admiration of the guest, who regarded it with coldly critical eyes.

"Where's Don's pet?"

"It's a parrot," explained Gladys. "He's in the house—in a cage. When we got Fluff we had to shut the parrot up, 'cause he wanted to pick Fluff's eyes out."

"You orter hear the parrot talk!" cried Jimmie. "He can say 'Now's the time,' 'Go it, old boy,' and 'I'll bet on you,' plain as I can."

"Let's bring him out," tempted the adorable one, "and look at all three together and see which is the nicerest."

"Oh, we can't!" cried Gladys hastily. "If they should fight, Aunt Fillie would be most scart to death."

The back of the adorable one is turned squarely upon the timorous Gladys. "Girls," witheringly, "are always scart!"

"I guess we'd better, Glad," said Jimmie slowly. "She said do everything we could to make Bobby happy."

"We'll make everybody happy," answered Bobby serenely. "We'll give her a Sarah Nade!"

"What's 'a Sarah Nade?"

"He means lemonade," interposed Gladys, anxious for reinstatement. "I'll help make it."

"No, it's a Sarah Nade—singing and—and bringing gifts. You make a p'cession and have your pets for gifts, and we'll all sing."

"Can't we dress up?" The girl never wanders far from her wardrobe.

"Naw!" in concert from the three masculines.

"Oh, I mean play dress up," pleaded Gladys. "I'll put on one of mamma's dress skirts, and Jimmie can put on papa's coat."

"Has it got tails?" The possibilities of the proposal appeal to the adorable one.

"I can find one with tails," eagerly—"two tails."

"All right. Can't you put a skirt on, Don? Then there'll be two ladies and two gentlemens in the Sarah Nade."

Don objected, but his minority vote was not recorded, and twenty minutes later the procession stole noiselessly up the steps and opened the door into the cool, dark hall.

Don, bearing the bellicose parrot, staggered patiently up the front of his mother's new tailored skirt; Gladys, with Fluff's claws digging wildly into her bare arms, switched the train of a pale blue foulard; Jimmie held his hand over the quivering jaws of the anxious Bunch and divided his attention between the trailing silk draperies in front of him and the two tails that dragged the ground at his rear. The adorable one, walking somewhat remotely, bore no indication of any participation in the proceedings.

Don pushed aside the portiere at the parlor door.

"In a Sarah Nade," the manager had explained before starting, "every one sings the things he likes best. Just as quick as we reach the curtains all begin!"

Don was like the heroes at Balaklava—not his to question why. He poked himself into the dim, sweet smelling room and opened his mouth in a doleful howl. Gladys pushed in close behind him, shrilly yelling; Jimmie planted both feet firmly on the blue foulard and gruffly vociferated in an imitation bass.

Their entrance was evidently not happily timed. An athletic young man sprang to his feet with a smothered exclamation, and Felicia was silent from sheer consternation.

Don's next step, gasping "Where the love in your eyes I could see," was inimical to renewals of any sort. Being born under Cancer, his movements were usually sidewise and crablike, and the clinging broadcloth skirt added to his uncertainty of balance. He fell heavily, and his chubby foot and legs upset the shrieking Gladys and bowled the valiant rag and bone reader on top of his suffering sister. Gladys in falling grasped despairingly at the legs of the astounded Parker and brought him to his knees on the bawling heap.

Poll escaped from Don's clutches and instituted a severe investigation of every leg, arm or body within reach of her vicious beak, clamoring incessantly. "Go it, old boy! Now's the time! I'll bet on you!" Bunch o' Brightness showed his fighting blood in violent attacks on Poll and the yowling Persian.

The man disentangled himself angrily and turned to the now hysterical girl. "I suppose you call this funny, Miss Austin, but I must confess my idea of a joke fails to coincide with yours."

He stepped grimly over the struggling mass, kicked Bunch—not gently—and with apparent relish cuffed the squeaking parrot.

"Glad tidings of great joy I bring," sang a seraphic voice as Parker strode into the hall. The adorable one was standing in his most admired Sunday pose, his hands loosely clasped before him and his beautiful face turned upward. He smiled beatifically into Parker's face and completed his carol.

"Did she like it?" with sweet solicitude. "Did she like the Sarah Nade?"

"Bobby," sternly, "who put up this job and what is it for?"

"Me," proudly. "We wanted to Sarah Nade her."

From the parlor came a pitiful sob and then a shrill, insistent, childish voice, "Did he say, Aunt Fillie—did he say that p'tic'lar thing he came to say?"

Parker went back.

"I didn't, Gladys, but I'm going to now. I won't be driven off so easily."

And, to the astonishment of the serenaders, he took Aunt Fillie in his arms, whispering swift, passionate words that brought back the sweet flush to her cheeks and a tremulous, happy smile to her lips.

GENERAL MIN ASSASSINATED

Young Girl Fired Five Shots Into His Back, Killing Him Instantly.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—General Min, commander of the Seminovsky guard regiment, who suppressed the riots at Moscow last December, was assassinated at Peterhof. General Min was at the railway station with his family when he was killed.

The deed was committed by a young girl, who fired five shots from a revolver into his back, killing him instantly. Madame Min seized the assassin by the hand and held her until the police arrived. After her arrest the girl showed the police a bomb lying in the station, telling them to beware.

"A surgeon used to carry a bag of instruments weighing often as much as twenty-five pounds when he was called to operate," said a member of the staff of the New York Postgraduate Medical School and Hospital the other day. "Today an average operation, such as the removal of an appendix, calls for no more instruments than can be carried in the pockets.

"I have just come," continued the doctor, "from removing an appendix, and here in this small package are all the instruments I used—a scissors, two artery clamps, two forceps and a needle. Many operations, of course—gastro-enteric, gynecological and those that have to do with bones—require more instruments, but modern science demands the use of as few as possible in order that time may be saved. Skill and haste are prime factors in an operation. In the old days, before anaesthesia was known, this was to shorten the patient's agony as much as possible. After ether was discovered surgeons for a while operated more leisurely, but soon finding out that the shock to the patient remaining under ether so long was always dangerous and often fatal they again recognized the importance of swiftness. Diminishing the number of instruments was one of the methods for saving time. In the operating room in the old days there was always, no matter what the operation, a good sized table laid out with ten or fifteen score of instruments, fifty artery clamps, scissors, forceps and lancets by the dozen. It used to take over an hour to remove an appendix; today the average is about twelve minutes.

"The variety of instruments increases every year as surgeons meet with new needs or solve old problems. In our school here, as in others, many instruments have been devised. Especially to those having to do with the eye, ear, nose and throat have we made valuable additions as well as in the field of orthopedic appliances. The Hippocratic oath precludes the patenting of any such inventions; consequently all instruments are free to be made by all and every surgical manufactory."

The making of surgical instruments in the United States is nearly contemporaneous with the beginning of the republic, and one or two of the prominent firms today date from long before the civil war. In no country are finer instruments made than in the United States. Though the number of men employed is small, every man is a skilled laborer and an artist, with an adroitness often as fine as that of a journeyman jeweler, capable of making even the most delicate of the great variety of instruments, amounting to about 10,000, which a surgical house must keep in stock or be ready to produce upon order.

Cast and drop forged instruments have no lasting value, and once the edge is worn off they can never be satisfactorily resharpened. The process which they undergo demands that they be brought three times to a white heat. The first time the steel becomes tempered; the second and third time it becomes decarbonized and loses its temper, the result being an instrument with a shell of hard steel, capable of taking a fair edge, but beneath which the metal is soft and unfit to stand honing.

"All good instruments are hand forged. Thus prices are doubled and trebled over the prices of cast instruments because of the skilled labor and time necessary to their construction. The workman in a careful factory must make a study of his work and learn the physical qualities of the steel or metal he works with, its strength and cutting and tension qualities. General operating instruments are made of steel, silver, platinum, gold and aluminium. German steel, owing to its tenacity, is used for forceps and blunt instruments; English cast steel for edged tools, as it receives a high temper, a fine polish and retains its edge. Silver when pure is very flexible and is useful for catheters, which require frequent change of curve. When mixed with other metals, as coin silver, it makes firm catheters, caustic holders and cannulated work. Seamless silver instruments are least liable to corrode. Platinum, under the action of acids and ordinary heat and is useful for caustic holders, sound cauteries and the electrodes of the galvano cautery. Gold, owing to its ductility, is adapted for fine tubes, such as eye syringes and so forth, while aluminium is by its extreme lightness suitable for probes, styles and tracheotomy tubes.

"Handles are made of ebony, ivory, pearl or hard rubber. Ebony and rubber are used for large instruments, though these at times have handles of steel. Ivory makes a durable and beautiful handle though it and ebony are not entirely aseptic, because it is impossible to boil them for the purpose of sterilization without their cracking. Ivory and pearl are used for scalpels and for small instruments like those used in operating on the eye. On the whole, the best material for handles is hard rubber, since it may be vulcanized on the instrument, thus making it practically one piece, with no possible seam for the lodging of germs and hence perfectly safe.

"Next to the materials the mode of making determines the instrument's quality. Steel overheated in the forge is brittle or rotten. In shaping with the file the form may be destroyed. In hardening and tempering the steel may be spoiled. In every stage the value of the instrument depends upon the skill applied."—New York Post.

He Was at Church.

Saunders, the village slater, was a very poor attender at the church. One day the minister met him and said:

"Come, now, Saunders, why is it you are never at church nowadays?"

"Never at the kirk?" replied Saunders. "Ye're quite wrang there, sir; I spent the hale o' last week on the tap o't."—Glasgow Times.

This Was In 1806.

Says the London Times of May, 1806: "A decently dressed woman was last night brought out into Smithfield for sale, but the brutal conduct of the bidders induced the man who was, or pretended to be, her husband, to refuse to sell her; on which a scene of riot and confusion highly disgraceful to our police took place."

—Itching piles provoke profanity, but profanity won't cure them. Doan's Ointment cures itching, bleeding or protruding piles after years of suffering. At any drug store.

He had Hard Luck.

Going down to Staten Island the other day was a seedy genteel young man with a lonesome expression of countenance, who had sat near the railing on the upper deck, suddenly began removing his shoes and outer garments.

Of course the people around him were excited, but he gave them no attention. When he was about to leap over, one of the ferry policemen come sauntering up and said.

"You there, put on your coat and vest!"

The young man donned the articles mentioned, and the officer continued:

"Now put on your shoes."

In a couple of minutes the shoes were on, and then the officer said.

"Now you sit down back there, or I'll heave you overboard!"

"Can't a fellow commit suicide if he wants to?" muttered the young man.

Of course he can, but you don't want to! This is about the tenth time you have gone to all this fussing and yet haven't jumped in. You make me tired, you do!"

Can't Scare 'Em Away.

The young man who doesn't want to spend his money is prone to talk to his lady love of the dangers of ice cream poisoning as they pass the parlors where the chilly sweets are served. When a man fears a millinery bill of comfortable proportions, the way he talks to his wife about the barbarism of killing the poor little birds and wearing feathers upon hats, you would think he was a member of the Audubon society.

Those of the same tribe who wants to keep the dents out of their pocketbooks will probably clip out of the newspaper the dispatch from St. Joseph, Mo., telling how Mrs. Susan Welland was crushed to death and a lot of other women badly injured in a bargain rush in a St. Joe department store. These men of the tribe of Neverspend need not think that they can scare their women-folks by calling attention to the shopping slaughter in Missouri. Such talk will not daunt the brave women of the east. With grim courage they will advance to the fray, willing to walk into the very teeth of danger. And when they have snatched from the surging counter a bargain at 98 that was formerly $1.10 the sweet smile of triumph will light up their faces and they will march home as proudly as a warrior returning from the wars. Mrs. Welland, of St. Joseph, may yet have a monument as a martyr who died in a glorious cause.

Game Wardens Get Even.

Game Wardens Joseph Berrier of Harrisburg and H. E. Hummelbaugh of Clearfield were in Beech Creek this week. Tuesday evening they went to Monument and arrested Clark Paul of that place, on the charge of killing a deer last February, and took him to Bellefonte Wednesday where he was arraigned before a magistrate. He was fined $100, which he promptly paid, the wardens giving him a rebate order for the fine he paid in Mill Hall, $100, which the wardens argued was received unwarrantably by reason of some technicality.

Attempt to Remove Rattlesnake's Fangs.

Pulling the teeth of a rattlesnake was bad work for David Myers at Tivoli, Lycoming county. He lies at Hughesville in the care of Dr. G. W. Metzgar, his body so swollen and so mottled that it looks similar to that of the snake that bit him.

He had the assistance of a man named Ziegler, whose hold on the snake was too far from its head, allowing it to strike Myers, in whose hand the fangs sank. Myers is strong, and there is hope of his recovery.

Myers sought to pull the snake's teeth to make it harmless, he and his companion then intending to show the serpent to their friends and pose as being fearless in handling venomous reptiles, expecting thus to have considerable fun.

DIED IN SHOWER BATH

Baltimore Bather at Cape May Had Just Been Rescued From Surf.

Cape May, N. J., Aug. 25.—Joseph P. Clark, of 29 north Ann street, Baltimore, died from heart failure under a shower sprinkler at Maguire's bath houses. He had just been bathing, and came near being drowned a few minutes before he was rescued and resuscitated, and was able to walk up the strand to the bath houses, but as soon as the cool water from the sprinkler struck him he dropped dead. He was an employe of the Chesapeake Steamship company at Light street wharf. Only two days ago he had rescued two women from drowning.

Call It "Carnegie Jargon."

London, Aug. 25.—President Roosevelt's decision to adopt the reformed spelling in his messages and in executive correspondence is commented upon by the newspapers of London in anything but a sympathetic spirit. The Standard bluntly declares that the president overrates his powers, adding that it declines to believe that scholarly and cultivated Americans will sacrifice the history and meaning of the language by adopting the "Carnegie jargon." Other of the newspapers deal with the matter in a humorous vein. The Daily News points out that if American publishers wish to invade the British market they should be conservative in their orthography.

NO MAN IS STRONGER THAN HIS STOMACH.

Let the greatest athlete have dyspepsia and his muscles would soon fail. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has insufficient food he loses strength. If he has no food he dies. Food is converted into nutrition through the stomach and bowels. It depends on the strength of the stomach to what extent food eaten is digested and assimilated. People can die of starvation who have abundant food to eat, when the stomach and its associate organs of digestion and nutrition do not perform their duty. Thus the stomach is really the vital organ of the body. If the stomach is "weak" the body will be weak also, because it is upon the stomach the body relies for its strength. And as the body, considered as a whole, is made up of its several members and organs, so the weakness of the body as a consequence of "weak" stomach will be distributed among the organs which compose the body. If the body is weak because it is ill-nourished that physical weakness will be found in all the organs—heart, liver, kidneys, etc. The liver will be torpid and inactive, giving rise to biliousness, loss of appetite, weak nerves, feeble or irregular action of heart, palpitation, dizziness, headache, backache and kindred disturbances and weaknesses.

Mr. Louis Pare, of Quebec, writes: "For years after my health began to fail, my head grew dizzy, eyes pained me, and my stomach was sore all the time, while everything I would eat would seem to lie heavy like lead on my stomach. The doctors claimed that it was sympathetic trouble due to dyspepsia, and prescribed for me, and although I took their powders regularly yet I felt no better. My wife advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—and stop taking the doctor's medicine. She bought me a bottle and we soon found that I began to improve, so I kept up the treatment. I took on flesh, my stomach became normal, the digestive organs worked perfectly and I soon began to look like a different person. I can never cease to be grateful for what your medicine has done for me and I certainly give it highest praise."

Don't be wheedled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicines, recommended to be "just as good."

To gain knowledge of your own body—in sickness and health—send for the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A book of 1008 pages. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

TRYING TO END REVOLT

Cuban Factions Discuss Means to End War Without Bloodshed.

MAY OFFER AMNESTY TO REBELS

Nevertheless, Both Sides Are Making Preparations to Fight, and Revolution is Spreading Rapidly — May Lead to American Intervention.

Havana, Aug. 27.—The anxiety of President Palma to take advantage of every opportunity for peace without bloodshed, and his desire to permit those who joined the insurrection under misguidance to repent and return to their homes unmolested, combined with the general wish to end a situation fraught with so much loss and suffering, has led to consideration by the president and his cabinet of a project decreeing a 30-day amnesty period, during which the insurrectionists are invited to lay down their arms and return to their peaceful pursuits.

General Montalvo, who is now acting secretary of the interior, on leaving the president said that at present there was no intention to issue an amnesty. Fort Sterling, secretary of the treasury, said the matter was not being seriously considered now, and other friends of President Palma declared it would be an unwise move.

So far as actual conflict went, Sunday proved to be a day of inactivity, but preparations proceeded without abatement. A fund of $2,000,000 has been set aside by the treasury for defense, and drafts on it are heavy and constant.

It was learned that several new insurgent bands had taken to the brush. The growth of the insurrection certainly seems to keep pace with the preparations for suffocating it. Next to the progress of the combatants, the most interesting question seems to be how to end the war without fighting. Around the discussion of this question centres a deal of crimination and recrimination from both Liberals and Moderates, both sides leveling accusations against the other as to the responsibility for precipitating the rebellion.

Interviews, statements and hints given out by the Liberals all point to the probability that the matter might be settled on the basis of the admission of leaders of their party to the councils of the government, and some form of guarantee that the future elections will be conducted with absolute fairness.

The insurrectionists in the field, who, of course, are far more radical in their demands and who are important factors in this discussion, do not think of accepting less than the complete annulment of the last elections. All the Liberals would insist, under any circumstances, upon a general amnesty for all rebels. The government, at this stage, does not think of considering any of these tentatively suggested proposals.

All discussion of this sort leads inevitably to the subject of American intervention. If the conflict should last for a long time, intervention is considered to loom up as a tolerably certain eventuality. If the government subdues the insurrection and chastises, wounds or kills members of the Liberal party, the feeling of rancor is expected to continue for years. If the insurrectionists prevail it is predicted that uncertain conditions are bound to continue.

Santa Clara is becoming a thorough insurrectionist province. Some villages have become wholly insurrectionist, and even larger towns, in some cases, have taken up arms against the government. The attitude of the people is entirely a question of the attitude of the leaders. A former mayor of Trinidad has suddenly placed himself at the head of a band of 100 insurgents. The mayor of Las Cruces is leading a band from his town consisting of 200 men.

Negro Lynched.

Calhoun, La., Aug. 27. — Alfred Schaufniet, a negro, was lynched here by a mob for attempting to criminally assault a prominent young woman of this place. Schaufniet was frightened by the screams of his intended victim and fled, but was later captured by a posse a few miles out of town. The following bold notice was posted upon the negro's body: "This is a warning to all negroes who would attempt to force an entrance to the apartments of white women."

Fatally Injured On Scenic Railway.

Indianapolis, Aug. 27.—A car on a scenic railway at a pleasure park north of Indianapolis jumped the track and injured five persons. Ora McCullough, of Tipton, Ind., was probably fatally hurt, and Helen McGuire, of Noblesville, Ind., was seriously injured. Anna Chessman, Tillie McDermott and Carl Augcalt were slightly hurt.

Blew His Head Off With Dynamite.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 27.—John Donnelly, aged 50 years, of Glen Lyon, an inmate of the almshouse at Retreat, nine miles from here, committed suicide in a novel manner. He forced an entrance into the boiler house and secured a stick of dynamite, which he exploded with a stone and blew off his head.

24-HOUR BALLOON TRIP

Passed Through Two States and Reached Altitude of 10,000 Feet.

New York, Aug. 27.—Dr. Julian P. Thomas, the amateur aeronaut, who with his brother, Jefferson Davis Thomas, of Augusta, Ga., made a balloon ascension here Saturday evening, returned to his residence in 72d street after having been in the air for nearly 24 hours and having passed through two states and reaching an altitude of about 10,000 feet. His voyage ended in Oakdale, Sullivan county, this state.

In relation to his experiences, Dr. Thomas said: "About 9 o'clock Saturday night the wind gave out, and so we made preparations for a descent. This we did successfully. We reached Breemerville, N. J., and there made a descent. We had supper and stayed in a farm house all night. Shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning we ascended again. We went up through the clouds and reached an altitude of 10,000 feet. I then slept for an hour.

"When I awoke I discovered that we were descending rapidly, in fact, we were going down almost in a straight line. We then made preparations to land, but coming out of the clouds found ourselves over a forest. Throwing out the guy rope, we caught hold of a tree and pulled ourselves to the earth."

"BLACK HAND" MURDERS?

Killing of Two Italians Greatly Excites West Berwick, Pa.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 27.—The inhabitants of West Berwick, Columbia county, are greatly excited over two murders that have occurred there within 24 hours, and they are anxiously awaiting for a detachment of the state constabulary.

Shortly after midnight a motley collection of Poles, Slavs and Italians got into an altercation over a negress, Joseph John, an Italian, shot Joseph Moore, the bullet going through his heart, killing him instantly. The murderer has escaped.

Tony Senkrup, an Italian, who was seated on the porch at his residence at the same place, was called down the street by four countrymen, who opened fire upon him, and 12 shots were fired, several of them striking him, one lodging near the base of the brain. The nature of the affair leads to the belief that the assailants belong to the "Black Hand" organization.

OUR FOREIGN COMMERCE

Both Imports and Exports Show Heavy Gains.

Washington, Aug. 27.—The imports for the month of July, according to the monthly statement of foreign commerce issued by the department of commerce and labor, were $102,586,797, as against $84,512,606 for July, 1905, while the total amount of exports for July, 1906, were $111,551,415, as against $107,930,421 for July, 1905. The imports for the seven months in 1906, ending with July, were $739,946,127, as against $674,454,049 for the same period in 1905, while the total exports for the seven months in 1906 ending with July were $969,394,143, as against $848,899,444 for the same period in 1905.

ROBBED LOCK BOXES IN P. O.

Young Man Arrested At Annapolis, Md., Returns Many Letters.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 27.—James H. Porter, aged 24 years, was arrested on the charge of robbing lock boxes in the postoffice. Porter rents one of the boxes, and it is charged has been making a practice of opening it late at night, reaching through and taking mail matter from adjoining boxes. Porter broke down and admitted that he had been robbing the office for some months, and gave the officials a bundle of from 75 to 100 letters which he admitted he had taken.

The theory of young Porter's mental irresponsibility has been advanced.

Were Reported Drowned.

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. George H. DeWitt, of New York city, and Boatman R. W. Welborne, of Cape Vincent, who were believed to have been drowned during a squall on Lake Ontario, and for whom a search had been conducted, were reported safe on Gallup Island.

ALL DRINKERS ARE CRAZY

Noted Alienist Declares Use of Alcohol is Evidence of Insanity.

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 25.—That the use of alcohol is in most cases a symptom of some disorder and not a cause, was the theory advanced by Dr. M. D. Crothers, superintendent of the Walnut Lodge hospital, of Hartford, Conn., in a paper on "The Insanity of Inebriety," read before the British Medical Association.

"The term inebriety," said Dr. Crothers, "describes a condition which calls for alcohol for its anesthetic effect, and in reality means a disease or disorder of the brain form which alcohol is a most grateful remedy.

"The use of alcohol is in most cases a symptom of some disorder, and not, as supposed, the cause. The theory that the excessive use of spirits is a vice and moral condition is not true.

"The marked symptoms of insanity are prominent. One is the periodic drinker, who drinks to excess for a short period, then abstains. This drink period is practically an acute mania, or insane impulse, which resists all efforts of control. It is often produced by insomnia, headaches and great irritability. Such persons drink both secretly and openly, and act like insane persons. It resembles epilepsy in its sudden convulsive onset, and inability to break up or control, except by the harshest measures.

"Cases have been noted where persons drank for two or more months, then abstained for five years, relapsing again as before. Another large class of patients are secret midnight drinkers, who never drink at any other time."

WILL REBUILD VALPARAISO

Stricken City to Rise On Finer and More Beautiful Lines.

Valparaiso, Aug. 25.—As the result of the splendid courage of the people and with the co-operation of the city government, Valparaiso will be rebuilt within a few years on finer and more beautiful lines than before the disaster of August 16.

The rain caused most of the people to desert the tents which they have occupied since the earthquake and return to their homes. Almost all the walls are cracked. Many of the people had to walk long distances carrying their bed clothes on their shoulders. There are no conflagrations, but the blowing up of damaged and dangerous structures with dynamite continues, and loud explosions are frequently heard. Otherwise the town has assumed an almost normal appearance. Many business houses have been reopened.

Panic On New York Trolley.

New York, Aug. 27.—Flames starting through the floor of a south-bound Third avenue car at 102d street caused a panic in which three persons were badly hurt and 20 more or less injured. Men and women in their fright jumped through the windows or pushed one another from the platforms, and three women threw their children to the street, bruising them severely. The screams of the passengers attracted a large crowd, and the police had difficulty in preserving order.

Deaf Mute Drowned.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 27.—While Theodore Voss and James Williams, deaf mutes, were fishing from a boat on Harvey's Lake, Voss fell overboard and was drowned. Several minutes elapsed before Williams missed his companion.

Cave-In On Pennsy's Line.

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 25.—A cave-in occurred on the new low-grade line of the Pennsylvania railroad in a cut 30 feet deep two miles east of Quarryville. The west-bound track was buried under an immense amount of dirt, which will require two to three days for its removal. Trains are being run around the obstruction on the east track. This cut was the most difficult feature the engineers had to contend with in the building of the road because of the quicksand encountered

USE REFORM SPELLING

President Orders His Messages Printed in New Style.

CABINET MAY FALL IN LINE

All Official Documents From White House Will Be Issued in Carnegieized Form — List of Simplified Spelling.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. .—President Roosevelt has endorsed the Carnegie spelling reform movement. He issued orders to Public Printer Stillings that hereafter all messages from the president and all other documents emanating from the White House shall be printed in accordance with the recommendation of the spelling reform committee headed by Brander Matthews, professor of English at Columbia University. This committee has published a list of 300 words in which the spelling is reformed. This list contains such words as "thru" and "tho" as the spelling for "through" and "though." The president's official sanction of this reform movement is regarded as the most effective and speediest method of inaugurating the new system of spelling throughout the country. Not only will the printed documents emanating from the president utilize the reform spelling, but his correspondence also will be spelled in the new style. Secretary Loeb has sent for the list of 300 words which have been reformed, and upon its arrival will immediately order all correspondence of the president and of the executive force of the White House spelled in accordance therewith. As the spelling reform committee shall adopt new reforms they will be added to the president's list and also to that of the public printer.

While the order to the public printer does not contemplate an immediate reform in the spelling of official documents from the executive departments in Washington, it is regarded that more than likely the respective heads of the departments will fall in line with the president's ideas and have their official documents printed in the new spelling.

A SQUARE ISSUE FOR 1908.

A Democratic paper published in Montgomery, Mo., says the masses of the American people are not satisfied with a full dinner pail, because "They want something more than that. They want money in their pockets, and they are going to revise the tariff, curb the trusts and get it." The rightful aspirations of every industrious American citizen are a good thing, and deserve to be encouraged and rewarded. But the masses can be retarded and impoverished by wrong public policies and incompetent government, as well as aided by capacity and accurate judgment in their representative bodies. Has the Republican party been a stumbling block to the "common people"? More than half the common people have supported it by their ballots, and the Democratic party is mistaken in supposing itself to be the mouthpiece of a majority. It is rather an aggregation of the uncommon people who, having failed to govern the country well, still urge their superior ability, and resoundingly promise to replace existing conditions with something better.

In regard to curbing the trusts, an object lesson has just been given by a Congress largely Republican in both branches, which has acted with a Republican President whose activity and sincerity in that respect is doubted nowhere unless among Missouri Bourbons. But if the Democrats want a square stand-up issue in 1908 let them declare for free trade. There is not an atom of doubt that the Republican platform will again be for protection.

BRYAN AND EMERY

They Are Linked Together In the Pennsylvania Campaign.

PLAYING NATIONAL POLITICS

Republicans Are Prepared to Meet the Issue With Roosevelt and Stuart As Their Leaders.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Aug. 28.

The home-coming of Bryan this week brings national politics to the front all over the country, and especially in Pennsylvania, where the democratic state convention which named Emery for governor in its platform declared Bryan the certain successor to Roosevelt.

There is now a clean-cut issue whether Roosevelt or Bryan shall be indorsed by the voters of Pennsylvania this fall.

Republicans For Reform.

It is the argument of the democrats and of the so-called Lincoln Party, which has been swallowed by the Democrats, that only local issues are involved. They claim—the Democrats and the Lincolnites—that they alone can give good government. Yet, if we take into consideration the work of the recent session of the special legislature, we find that every reform demanded by the most drastic reformer was adopted. In other words, the Republican party gave direct proof that it was not only willing but anxious to lead the movement for political reform and political regeneration.

The platform of the Republican party and the candidates in person stand for the purest and the most advanced ideas. The Republican state platform is linked with that of the Republican party of the nation. To separate the two is impossible. When you vote for Stuart you vote for the indorsement of the policies of Theodore Roosevelt. When you vote for Emery you give aid and sustenance to the supporters of William J. Bryan.

In plain words, we are going to decide in November whether we are Roosevelt Republicans or Bryan Democrats.

There will be those who will declare that their support of Emery is not an indorsement of Bryan. But it will be, just the same.

The situation is one of deep interest and it is useless to deny that it is also one of concern. Two years before the nominating convention will be held, Bryan is as good as nominated already. State after state has declared for him through Democratic state conventions. During the past week two more states fell into line. Wisconsin went wild over his name and indorsed him outright as the standard bearer of 1908. Pennsylvania Democrats went on record in practically the same manner, for they hailed him as the great "Democratic commoner, who is now regarded as the certain successor of Theodore Roosevelt."

To drive the wedge in Pennsylvania the Bryan leadership has joined hands with the Lincolnites by taking the candidate of the latter for governor.

Opening Mass Meeting.

Philadelphia Republicans are deeply interested in what will probably be the initial meeting of the state campaign. It will be given in the Academy of Music in this city on Wednesday evening, September 12. The meeting is to be held in connection with an immense demonstration to be given under the auspices of friends and neighbors of Mr. Stuart in the southern section of the city. Leading businessmen and manufacturers are working with the Republican clubmen to make this occasion a grand success. It is predicted that there will be the largest turnout of Republican clubs ever made in that section of the city, and that the Academy of Music will not be large enough to hold the thousands who will join in this tribute to one of the most popular Philadelphians ever named for public office.

Stuart's Personal Strength.

There are new evidences given daily of the admitted strenth of the Republican nominee for governor.

The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, an independent newspaper which supported Berry and the entire fusion ticket last fall, says:

"The nomination of Edwin S. Stuart for governor places at the head of the Republican state ticket a clean, upright and respected member of the party. It would not have been possible to find among the regular Republicans any other man of reputation who enjoys more of the good will of the people of Philadelphia than the ex-mayor, and this good will extends in large measure into the state.

"Throughout his career he has been associated with no scandals or abuses of his making or his sanction either in official life or in party management; his personal character is high, and his instincts as a citizen and as a party man are in the direction of honest politics and good government. His administration as mayor of Philadelphia was one of the two best under the Bullitt act, and in every public or semi-public post to which he has been summoned, his tact, sense and integrity have enabled him to be useful and successful.

"There is no doubt that Stuart is in entire sympathy with the strong platform on which he has been nominated, and that if elected governor he may be depended upon to carry it out in the purposes of his administration

"Stuart is unquestionably stronger than his party, or rather the party organization behind him."

Death of Mrs Harvey Griffith.

A very sudden death was that of Mrs. Harvey Griffith, which occurred at her home at Axe Mann, Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. She had been apparently in her usual health up until that evening when she was suddenly taken with a a coughing spell and in a few minutes passed away. Death was due to heart disease.

Her maiden name was Martin and she was 58 years of age. She is survived by her husband and eight children, three sons and five daughters: Neil, of Missouri, Samuel and Alfred of Axe Mann; Mrs. Thomas Martle, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Robert Baney, of Axe Mann; Mrs. Harry Smith, Beaver Falls; Lissa, Kate and Annabel at home.

The funeral took place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. Rev. Chilcote, the Methodist minister at Pleasant Gap officiated. Interment in the Union cemetery Bellefonte.

Wedding Attendants Hastily Wedded, Too

"I think I'll marry you, too," said the Rev. John William Kliefken, pastor of the Atlantic City Reformed church, to the attendants of Miss Emma Sheppley of Fisherville und C. F. Bowman of Harrisburg, when the latter were about to be married Thursday.

"We have no objection," replied Miss Margaret E. Lutz and Ellis H. Murray, both of Harrisburg. And so they were married. The two pairs of brides and bridesgrooms returned from Atlantic City Friday, and after their honeymoons will go to housekeeping at Enola.

When Miss Shepley and Mr. Bowman left for Atlantic City it was with the intention of being married. Miss Lutz and Mr. Murray, who were close friends went with them to act as bridesmaid and groomsman.

They had no intention of being married till the minister, having learned that they were engaged, proposed a double wedding. The four were standing before the Rev. Mr. Kliefken in his church, Pacific and New York avenues, in the presence of 30 guests, when the proposition, which resulted in the double wedding, was made.

Pays His Dead Debts With Full Interest.

After an absence of 31 years, John M. Snyder, a former New Castle boy, who is now a successful artist in Cleveland, has returned to his old home to pay up debts of honor he contracted as a young man.

During the early seventies John M. Snyder was one of the society young men of New Castle. Financial reeerves came to him, and he finally awoke to the fact that he owed $2,200 without any assets He kept a careful memorandum of his debts, and in the intervening years planned to return home and settle in full with all his creditors.

He has made and lost several fortunes, but when once more well fixed from a money standpoint he decided to return to the home of his boyhood, and his first business was to seek out all whom he had ever owed. Each was paid in full, with the interest for thirty-one years.

The debts were long ago outlawed, and none could now have been collected, but that made no difference to Snyder. Many of his creditors were dead, but their heirs received the amounts in full.

ROOSEVELT IS ALERT

President Keenly Interested In Political Situation In Pennsylvania.

WANTS BIG REPUBLICAN VICTORY

His Visit to the York County Fair Will Not Be Simply to See the Prize Cattle.

[Special Correspondence.]

Harrisburg, Aug. 28.

"President Roosevelt is not going to the York county fair simply to see the prize bulls, you can depend upon that," remarked a well-informed Washington correspondent a few days ago in discussing the president's anticipated visit to Pennsylvania next month. This newspaper man is in touch with members of the cabinet and other leading officials of the national administration, and he knows the keen interest the president and all of those associated with him are manifesting in the coming election.

While it is possible that at the dedication of the new capitol building here the president may not touch upon politics, there is reason to believe that in his remarks subsequently at the York county fair he will make clear his desire for the election of a Republican congress.

It is known that the president has made a number of inquiries regarding political conditions in Pennsylvania, and he has on more than one occasion expressed an earnest wish for the success of the Republican party in this state this fall.

President Roosevelt has taken advantage of several opportunities recently to arouse interest in the Republican cause.

Mr. Roosevelt's Dollar.

Anent his subscription to the Republican congressional committee's campaign fund, Editor Earle C. Tuten, of the Bellefonte Republican, has this to say about "Mr. Roosevelt's dollar":

"One of the first to heed the call of the chairman of the Republican campaign committee for one dollar contributions to the campaign fund is President Roosevelt. The president believes in the virtue of example and gives his dollar early with an implied injunction to all Republicans who share with him a true spirit of loyalty to party principle to go and do likewise. Undoubtedly the president's example will bear fruit. Its special value consists in the fact that every public act of the chief executive of the nation commands the attention of the whole people, and that accordingly his recognition of the dollar a head idea will bring the merit thereof home to hundreds of thousands of citizens who otherwise might let it pass unnoticed.

He Leads the Way.

"Naturally this simple device commends itself to the president because of the conditions which have made it necessary. In former times the great corporations were the chief donors of campaign funds, and very little money was obtained from the privates in the ranks of the political parties. Largely through Mr. Roosevelt's instrumentality, a death blow has been dealt to the practice of collecting funds from such sources.

"Henceforward, therefore, the campaign committee of all parties must look to individuals for the wherewithal to meet the heavy cost of campaigning. There should be no difficulty on this head if it is only possible to enlist individual attention and to inspire generally an adequate sense of partisan obligation. It is this that Mr. Roosevelt has in mind, and he has taken the one method of emphasizing his views where good results are sure to be achieved."

A State Dollar Fund.

Colonel Wesley R. Andrews, of the Republican state committee, has followed the lead of Chairman Sherman, of the congressional committee, and is soliciting one dollar subscriptions to the state campaign fund. The radical anti-corporation declarations made in the Republican platform in Pennsylvania, coupled with the knowledge that Edwin S. Stuart as governor will see that all the party pledges are carried out, will without doubt deter many capitalists from contributing to the Pennsylvania Republican state committee this year.

But this is to be "a people's battle," and the dollars of the people will bring returns in a triumphant Republican victory.

Fortunately, the Republican party has cleaned its household and has placed itself in the van of reform legislation, thus giving no valid excuse for any Republican to desert the Republican ranks. If Emery stands for a principle, Stuart likewise stands for it, and Stuart, furthermore, has the advantage of representing the Republicanism of Theodore Roosevelt.

Common sense is going to win the coming battle in Pennsylvania, not hysteria, and when the people begin to see, as they will, that Stuart is a Republican who owes allegiance only to that which is best in Republicanism and not to individuals, that he is a Republican who stands shoulder to shoulder with Roosevelt for the Square Deal, they will discover only danger in the movement for Emery.

Dog Paper carriers Hold Service Record.

For the greater part of 16 years Charles S. Sadler, a Pullman porter on Lehigh Valley trains 1 and four, between Philadelphia and Buffalo, has daily witnessed a remarkable display of intelligence on the part of two dogs at Watkins Glenn, New York.

Sadler, whose home is at 1409 South Eighteeen street, Philadelphia, has friends residing half a mile from the track at Watkins Glenn, and for 16 years he has been in the habit of throwing off a bundle of newspapers as he passes. His friends own two dogs, Nellie Bly and Drover, and it did not take these intelligent beasts long to improve the chance to make themselves useful.

Daily they take turns at going down to the crossing where Sadler drops the papers, showing an improvement over the majority of human beings in that they are always on time, and if the train is late, by waiting patiently without intimating they could run the road themselves better than the owners.

Thus one or the other, as the turn may fall, is always on hand when the express arrives, and when the papers fall to the ground the canine newscarrier quickly snape them up and bears them home in triumph, with much tail-wagging and other demonstrations of joy peculiar to dogs.

For years these faithful dog have done their daily duty, regardless of weather and disarrangement of railroad schedules, and the illustrate a phase of dog intelligence and hold a record that is believed to be unique.

Sleep Habits of Animals.

"When a monkey sleeps he picks out the highest perch he can find," said an animal trainer. "When the only home of the monkey was a forest, he lived always in deadly fear of the lion. A live monkey is the choicest morsel to the king of beasts. Although the monkey is wise and knows that in a zoo the lions are securely caged, the fear is born in him and he sleeps on the high perch.

"The lioness, when free from family cares, is prone to lie on its back with its legs stretched up in the air and paws pendant. The lion, when the excitement of the day is gone, stretches itself out flatly on its side with paws turned in and twitches and throbs during its slumbers a good deal like a dog. Gorillas and chimpanzees sleep with their hands over their heads. Bears, which have no fear, sleep in any position. The same is true of wolves.

"Animals of a cunning or cowardly nature, however, are always on the alert, even when asleep. A seal sleeps like a human being. Once in awhile a seal will sit up with its head on its chest, asleep in the water. Its ears are kept under so that he may hear the approach of an enemy, sound traveling with great distinctness under water.

Mail Order Bride is Pursued by a crowd.

Miss Eliza Kent of Fort Atkinson, Wis. a prospective "correspondence bride," was mobbed by a curious crowd at the railroad station when she arrived to marry Robert Miller, who advertised for a wife.

Miller confided in a few friends, with strict injunctions to secrecy, but when he arrived at the station the train shed was crowded and the streets blocked with people gathered to see the young woman.

Miss Kent displaying a red rose for identification, was the first passenger to alight from the train, but evidently she was not pleased with Miller's appearance, for she backed away from him, and then attempted to escape by running from the building.

The crowd started in persuit, The chase continued for six blocks, until Miss Kent took refuge in a stranger's house, and the police dispersed the mob. Miller's employer discharged him.

Blames Poker Game for a $17,000 Loss

For the second time this week, Pierce Schug, former clubman and prominent contractor of Hughesville, arrested Thursday evening, charged with having obtained money under false pretenses. When arrested on Tuesday he was held in $1,000 bail and Thursday evening his bail was fixed at $800.

His arrest Thursday evening disclosed a sensational story of how Schug alleges to have lost $17,000 in a poker game in Chicago. Before leaving Hughesville, two months ago, he borrowed money extensively, ostensibly for the purpose of investing in a western venture.

When he left he was known to have taken with him $27,000. He came back to Hughesville 10 days ago and asked for a meeting of his creditors for the purpose of going into bankruptcy.

The meeting was held last Monday evening in Williamsport, and at it Schug told how, while in chicago, he was beguiled by sharpers to go into a gambling joint, and before morning he had lost $17,000 at poker.

He said he had $6,000 left, and this he offered to turn over to his creditors. They declined to settle that way, and the arrest followed.

A century Ago.

Few persons today stop to realize how different things were in this country a century ago. Here are a few things to think of:

Merchants wrote their letters with quill pens. Sand was used to dry the ink as there was no blotting paper. There were no street letter boxes; letters had to be carried to the postoffice. It cost eighteen and one-half cents to send a letter from Boston to New York and twenty-five cents from Boston to Philadelphia.

Every gentleman—Washington, for example, wore a queue; many powdered their hair.

Imprisonment for debt was common.

Virginia contained a fifth of the whole population of the country.

The Mississippi Valley was not so well known as the heart of Africa now is.

Two stage coaches carried all the travelers between New York and Boston, and six days were required for the journey.

There was not a public library in the United States. A day laborer received two shillings a day.

Stoves were unknown. All cooking was done at an open fireplace.

Insurgent Leader Killed

Havana, August 23.—General Bandero noted negro leader of Havana Province and head of the insurgent band who began operating against government was killed early this morning in encounter with rural guards.

The Central Pennsylvani Firemen's Association Met in Bellefonte.

Bellefonte was crowded Thursday with firemen from all over Central Pennsylvania and a jollier, livelier crowd was never gathered together within the boro limits. The town practically belongs to the fire fighters and they are practically making good use of their privilege. The crowd so far has been very orderly and there are no disturbances whatever. There was a large attendance of delegates at the meeting Wednesday afternoon. It was the largest representation of delegates in years,

The convention was presided over by President John M. McSuley, who made a fair and impartial presiding officer. He looked quite at home in the judges chair and was highly complimented for the manner in which he conducted the duties of his office.

The address of welcome made by Senator W. C. Heinle made an excellent impression and was listened to with close attention all through. It was an able effort and eloquently delivered.

Four new companies were admitted to membership in the association: Friendship, of DuBois; Winburn Company and the Good Will and Hope Hose Company of Lock Haven.

Clearfield was selected as the place of meeting for next year's convention and they assured the convention a hearty welcome to their town.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—H. G. Ogden, Clearfield;

1st Vice President—J. D. Weaver, DuBois.

2nd Vice President—Chas. Dewey, Philipsburg.

Secretary—W. C. Langsford, Houtzdale.

Treasurer—Frank Grebe, Philipsburg.

Delegate to the State Convention—John M. McSuley, Bellefonte.

Linemen Making Connection.

The linemen who are stringing the wires for the Bald Eagle Telephone company between Beech Creek and Mill Hall will complete their work Saturday and connect the wires which are strung to Beech Creek. This will give Beech Creek direct connection with the Lock Haven exchange, avoiding the present connection around by Bellefonte and down Nittany valley. More phones will be installed in Beech Creek during the next few days, among them being the residences of Henry C. Williams and Jesse S. Hall and the office of the Pennsylvania Fire Brick Co. Several farmers between here and Mill Hall will have phones installed in their homes on the Bald Eagle line.

Labor Day Services.

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which is the highest legislative and judicial body of that church, several years ago provided for the appointment of a Secretary in connection with the Home Mission Board, who has an office in Chicago, whose special duty it should be to cultivate close and harmonious relations with not only the laboring organizations. Rev. Charles Stelzle is that Secretary.

In accordance with the suggestion and the recommendation of the General Assembly, the Presbyterian Church in Bellefonte will hold special services on Sunday, September 2nd, 1906, the day previous to the regular annual Labor Day holiday All the labor organizations in which there is any considerable representation of laboring men have been invited and several have signified their intention to attend in a body. Members of other organizations will come as individual. Altogether the attendance promises to be large and the services will undoubtedly be interesting

The pastor of the Church, the Rev. Dr. Platts, will preach in the morning at 10:30 on "Jesus Christ and the Laboring Man," and, in the evening on "The Law of Labor."

To these services all laboring men, whether heretofore especially invited or not, we are very cordially invited. It is hoped that the attendance will be large and that we may see a practical exemplification of the sympathy and co operation which ought to exist between the Church of Jesus Christ who, in his life, was the friend of laboring men, and those to whom the gospel is especially sent.

In a neat card of invitation, which has been issued by the church, it is said that the music will be good and that you that is, whoever reads this notice—are cordially invited.

Hands are Rattlesnake Hunter's Only Weapons.

Campers returning to Lewisburg from the Nittany mountains on the border of Union county, tell of seeing the operations of a resident of that region, who has a passion for killing rattlesnakes with his bare hands.

This mountaineer, Ira Snyder, lives at Forest Hill, and he spends whole days at his peculiar and dangerous sport of slaying the rattlers. He has killed thousands of them.

Snyder never uses a stick or any kind of weapon when he tackles a snake, no matter how big the reptile may be. He would consider such a proceeding cowardly. When he sights a snake he creeps toward it stealthily, so as not to give it an alarm. When within range he springs upon it and seizes it with his right hand, just back of the head, giving it no opportunity to turn upon him. The snake may coil its body about his arm, but cannot reach him with its poisonous fangs.

So expert is Snyder at the business that in all his snake-hunting adventures he has never been bitten. A snake captured he sits down and cuts off its head with a jackknife. He sells the skins for $1 each, and his earnings in a season amounts to several hundred dollars.

"Quick lunch" is one of the commonest of city signs. The sign doesn't say "a healthy lunch of good food—the character of the food apparently is not considered, It's just a quick lunch.—eat eat and get away. Is it any wonder that the stomach breaks down? Food is thrown at it, sloppy, indigestible and innutritious food very often, and the stomach has to do the best it can. Normally there should be no need for medical assistance for stomach. But the average method of life is abnormal and while this continues there will always be a demand for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the one medicine which can be relied on to cure diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition It is not a cure-all. It is a medicine designed for the stomach, and to cure through the stomach remote diseases which have their cause in the derangement of the stomach and digestive and nutritive system. It cures when all else fails,

Love Lifts Age Bar When 81 Marries 60.

Eighty-one-year-old Lee M. Smith of Denver, Col., and 60-year-old Miss Luella Cook of Factoryville, near Wilkes-Barre, were married Wednesday in the office of the marriage license clerk by Alderman Perkins.

The wedding is a culmination of a romance which began when they were young folks and Smith was a resident of Wilkes-Barr.

They knew and liked each very well then, but the difference in their ages at that time seemed so great that they did not think of marrying.

Smith went west 31 years ago, and has prospered. Recently he began to long for a partner to share the remainder of his life. He came east, found Miss Cook still unmarried and was accepted after a short courtship.

When All Run Down.

You don't want anybody to make light of your condition by telling you that it is mostly imaginary and that all you need to do is to brace up.

You are not in a mood to treat in that way a matter that is so serious.

Neither are we.

You should take Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills—They will restore your health and strength.

They purify and enrich the blood, perfect the digestive and assimilative processes, and build up the whole system.

A. J. Grant, West Newton, Ohio, says: "Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and make me strong and hearty."

Accept no substitutes for Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills, for no substitutes act like them.

Complexion Hints.

Only when there is perfect assimilation of the food is a good complexion possible.

Bananas should improve the complexion of a person suffering with rheumatism or stomach trouble caused by too much acid in the blood.

Tomatoes and berries are excellent for throat disorders, in the form of congestion, or swelling of the vocal chords.

With peaches, pears, plums, etc., taken before, or as dessert, the effect on the general health depends entirely on how they are effected by the juices of the stomach.

Every woman knows that fruits should benefit the complexion if eaten judiciously, but few understand whether fresh or cooked ones agree best with them.

Destitute, He Robs the Dead.

Charged with robbing a dead man, Harry Daughenbaugh, of Altoona, was Saturday arrested in that place and held for court. He admitted that he had stolen a watch and chain from W. H. Reed, of Lock Haven, after Reed died on the street in Altoona.

Several women in the neighborhood saw him remove the jewelry, and reported it to the police. When Daugbenbaugh failed to turn the property over to the coroner his arrest was ordered, and the valuables were recovered at a pawn shop.

Asked why he became a ghoul, he declared that he had been out of work and robbed the dead to provide for his family.

R. A. Beck the Most Popular Fireman.

The ladies in charge of the Indian Booth at the Midway announced yesterday that they would give a prize to the most popular fireman, and R. A. Beck, our up-town barber proved to be the fortunate one, having received the largest number of votes. He was presented with a beautiful ivory handle pistol.

The vote was as follows:

R. A. Beck	525
Col. H. S. Taylor	430
John Knisely	272
John A. Donan	62
Maurice Jackson	20
Wilson Gephart	23

A Hair Dressing

Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

That Base Ball Game.

Thursday evening's Lock Haven Express replys to Bellefonte's challenge to play the Auto team with the following:

Now what do you think of that? We got em stirred up at last and just as soon as our team come home the details will be arranged. But the game cannot be played on Labor day as our team has two games scheduled at home for that day. Hecla park is a poor place to play, too, for there is no place to put the crowd so that the players will not be interfered with (if there is a crowd.)

In reply to the above, we would state that the Bellefonte and Centre county boys only will compose the team that goes against the Auto's.

It does seem to us that Hecla park would be the most convenient place to play the game and we can assure them a good crowd from this end if that is the case.

A Bold Highwayman.

A very bold attempt at highway robbery was made in Market Square at Williamsport Wednesday morning during the busiest hours of the market. Philip McGuire, who seemingly has no particular address, believed to be a desperate character from Chicago, assaulted Mr. M. R. Zitch, and demanded her pocketbook and money in the roughest manner imaginable Not being successful in his first attempt he was about to accost the lady the second time when he was frightened away by the screams of several women for help, but was later arrested and jailed.

LIVER AND KIDNEYS.

It is highly important that these organs should properly perform their functions.

When they don't what lameness of the side and back, what yellowness of the skin, what constipation, bad taste in the mouth, sick headache, pimples and blotches, and loss of courage. tell the story.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills give the kidneys and liver the vigor and tone necessary for the proper preformance of their functions, and cure all their ordinary ailments.

W. S. Watson, Altona, Ill., says: "I took Hood's Sarsaprilla for kidney trouble and it did the work nobly. Three bottles cured me."

Accept no substitutes for Hood's Sarsaprilla and Pills, for no substitutes act like them.

Forty Russian Hebrew Children Brought to America.

PARENTS KILLED IN MASSACRES

Hebrew Charities Promised to Educate and Care For Them, But They Were Ordered Deported—Tells How Parents Were Whipped to Death.

New York, Aug. 27.—The case of the 449 Russian Hebrew children who arrived here Saturday on the steamship Amerika was heard by the board of special inquiry at the immigration station on Ellis Island, and the board after deliberation decided that the children should be excluded from this country. Accordingly their deportation was ordered. This, however, is not final, and the case has already gone on appeal to Washington. The children, all of them made orphans by the recent massacres in Russia, were gathered from the centres of the recent trouble and brought here in charge of Mrs. Sophie Perimann, of Berlin. Wealthy Hebrews of this city supplied the funds and secured homes throughout the country where the children could be sent.

The orphans were brought before board No. 2, of which Inspector Parbury is chairman. Secretary Waldman, of the United Hebrew Charities, appeared in behalf of the children. He said they would be well cared for, educated and looked after, and that there was no chance that they would become charges on the public.

The board after consideration of the case thought otherwise and announced that the children would be ordered excluded.

Mr. Waldman said that the case would be appealed, and a decision is expected in a few days. Under the ruling Mrs. Perimann must return with her charges to insure their care on the journey back to Hamburg.

In the meantime the children will be well fed and well cared for on Ellis Island. Sunday they were turned loose in the playroom, where they spent the day having a good time.

Rebecca S. Molefsky, aged 12 years, one of the Jewish orphans, told how her parents were whipped to death by Cossacks in the public square at Kishineff. To an interpreter she told the following story:

"My father was a tinsmith, and he had done something to make the Russian soldiers cross with him. They came to our house and beat my mother so hard that she cried. Then my father came home and struck one of the soldiers, who went away. That evening a dozen Cossacks came to our house again and took my father and mother away. I and my brother Joseph followed them. Joseph is 6 years old.

"On the way to the market place, where they beat my parents, they bound them hand to hand at first, but when they reached the public square they bound my mother and father hand and feet, back to back. Then they took great whips and beat them both across the face and body, and each time they fell down they picked them up again and beat them the more. With my brother I had tried to get to where my parents were, but the soldiers dragged us away, and because I screamed and my brother cried they locked us up for three days without food, after which my brother died. The soldiers then told me to run away. I found out afterward that my parents were dead."

Christian Scientists Censured.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 27.—Christian Science healers are censured in a verdict rendered by Coroner Thomas A. Killip in the case of Fanny Green, a young woman, who died here of cerebro-spinal meningitis. She was ill 11 weeks, and the coroner finds that she was attended only by so-called Christian Science healers, her father, Randall G. Green; Arthur R. Vosburg, Emma Shoecraft and Esther C. Spencer, their treatment consisting of prayer and endeavoring to impress on the mind of the girl that she was not sick, and if she but realized she was "the ideal child of God," her sickness would be overcome and she would be well.

Will Nominate Sulzer For Governor.

New York, Aug. 27.—In a statement given out, Tammany Leader Julius Harburger, of the 10th assembly district, declares he will be a delegate to the Buffalo convention, and will take the platform and present for the Democratic nomination for governor the name of Congressman William Sulzer, of New York city. Mr. Harburger said he made this statement in response to District Attorney Jerome who recently challenged the leaders of Tammany Hall to express their choice for governor.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 27.—Vincenzo Errigoni, a foreman of section hands of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad company, was shot and instantly killed by Luigi Salwiner in an Italian boarding shanty here. The breaking of a phonograph record was the cause of the shooting.

Salwiner was storekeeper at the shanty and Errigoni was operating a phonograph belonging to Salwiner. He accidently broke one of the records and after cursing him, Salwiner walked into the shanty and secured his revolver. He shot his victim in the eye, the bullet penetrating the brain. The police arrested 17 men, all the occupants of the shanty, but the alleged murderer was not among them.

WROTE BLACK HAND LETTERS

Two Italian Boys Captured By a Ruse At Trenton, N. J.

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 27.—Carmen Cappionio, aged 20, and Forti Fortunatto, aged 23 years, two Italians, were arrested here for sending a Black Hand letter to Agostin Vaunozzi, a saloonkeeper, demanding that he place $500 under a stone in a secluded spot. Vaunozzi pretended to comply, and put an empty envelope under the stone. The boys were captured at the stone by the police, to whom the matter had been reported.

State Dispensary On Trial.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 27.—The state dispensary, which came into existence under the leadership of B. R. Tillman, more than 13 years ago, is on trial. Whether the liquor traffic in South Carolina shall continue under state control or whether it shall be left to the counties to say what they want as between county dispensaries and prohibition, will be settled in the Democratic primary. Although Senator Tillman has no opposition, he has taken an active part in state issues, making a four weeks' campaign of his own in support of the state dispensary. He declined to take part in the regular canvass, saying that he would not speak if his time was limited.

Bursting Locomotive Kills Two.

CHARGED WITH BRIBERY

Two Men Tried to Buy Colored Juror For $50.

Boston, Aug. 25.—Walter M. Clark, a horse dealer, and William Washington, a negro, were placed under arrest and sent to jail in default of bond of $10,000, charged with contempt of court in attempting to bribe a member of the jury which is trying the case of Dr. John Sinclair, charged with performing a criminal operation and causing the death of Miss Annie Russell last February.

The arrests of Clark and Washington followed a sensational interruption of the court proceedings. Alfred M. Green, colored, a member of the jury, informed Judge Harris that an attempt had been made to influence him in favor of the defendant by an offer of $50. Judge Harris excused the jury until next Tuesday and placed the matter in the hands of District Attorney Morap, who ordered the arrest of Clark and Washington.

GERMAN GLEE CLUBS.

Early Days of the Saengerfests In This Country.

In the early days of saengerfests in this country they were held annually. The third saengerfest was held in New York in 1852, and many Newark Germans attended. Below are given extracts from the Newark Daily Advertiser, printed at the time:

June 10, 1852.—The German glee clubs of New York will celebrate the third annual festival in New York this year on the 19th to 22d of June. The New York Journal of Commerce states that the glee clubs from abroad will be received by the New York clubs and honored with a torchlight procession. The principal performance will take place at the Academy of Music, Fourteenth street, when the choruses will be sung by over 1,200 male voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 100 pieces. On the 22d will be held a picnic on the Bloomingdale road, opposite Striker's bay.

June 22.—Third musical jubilee of Germania singers, Saturday to Tuesday, 19th to 22d. The execution of the "Magic Flute" overture by 1,200 voices was very successful and surprising by the New York clubs and was received with great applause. The Eintrachts of Newark sang "Wallisiacher Schiffergesang" in a distinguished manner. But the most marked performance was Martin Luther's "Ein Feste Burg Ist Unser Gott," arranged by Finke. We felt immediately what religious music really is—how grand, solemn and sublime such a hymn is when performed by a large orchestra and hundreds of voices. It was something to be remembered long. Kossuth was present during an intermission and was cheered.—Newark News.

THE SERPENT'S VENOM.

Mohammedan Legend of the Origin of the Tobacco Plant.

The prophet was taking a stroll in the country when he saw a serpent, stiff with cold, lying on the ground. He compassionately took it up and warmed it in his bosom. When the serpent had recovered it said:

"Divine prophet, listen. I am now going to bite thee."

"Why, pray?" inquired Mohammed.

"Because thy race persecutes mine and tries to stamp it out."

"But does not thy race, too, make perpetual war against mine?" was the prophet's rejoinder. "How canst thou, besides, be so ungrateful and so soon forget that I saved thy life?"

"There is no such thing as gratitude upon this earth," replied the serpent, "and if I were now to spare thee either thou or another of thy race would kill me. By Allah, I shall bite thee."

"If thou hast sworn by Allah, I will not cause thee to break thy vow," said the prophet, holding his hand to the serpent's mouth. The serpent bit him, but he sucked the wound with his lips and spat the venom on the ground. And on that very spot there sprang up a plant which combines within itself the venom of the serpent and the compassion of the prophet. Men call this plant by the name of tobacco.—Conte Arabe.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood.

If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

THE DEATH ROLL NOW 32

Two More Injured In Bomb Explosion In Stolypin Home Die.

VICTIMS BLOWN TO PIECES

Russian Revolutionists Promise Wholesale Assassinations Unless Government's Policy Is Changed—General Min Assassinated.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 27.—The daughter of Premier Stolypin, who was injured by the bomb explosion in the premier's summer home Saturday, and who was erroneously reported to have died, is still alive, and passed a quiet night under the effects of an opiate. The premier's son, who also was hurt, is better.

The telegram sent by Emperor Nicholas to M. Stolypin after the explosion was as follows:

"I cannot find words to express my indignation. I hope with all my heart that the health of your son and daughter will soon be restored and likewise that of the other persons injured."

Two more of the 25 persons injured by the explosion died, bringing the total number of deaths up to 32. Twenty-six persons were instantly killed.

The central committee of the Social Revolutionists has drawn up a proclamation which declares that unless the government forthwith alters its policy such acts as the attempt on the life of Premier Stolypin will be pursued to the utmost, and government representatives will be killed by hundreds.

The premier was holding a reception when the four terrorists arrived in a coach. One of them was dressed as a driver and was on the box. Two were foreign military uniforms and the fourth was in civilian dress. Two of the occupants of the carriage, who were ostentatiously laughing and chatting as they approached the house, descended from the carriage, one of them carrying an article about a foot high, resembling a gilded vase, and passed unhindered into the house, though a police sergeant was stationed near the door to keep a lookout for suspicious persons. The driver remained on his box, and the man who wore civilian clothes remained in the carriage.

The two men who entered the house easily gained admission to the anterooms, where a footman and three secretaries were stationed. Without explanation they tried to pass through to the reception hall, where an official reception was being held. One of the secretaries, however, started forward to inquire their business, and, evidently realizing that it would be impossible for them to gain access to the premier, the man who held the supposed vase hurled it with all his strength against the wall next to the reception hall.

At the moment of the explosion the large reception hall was filled with a great consourse of officials and visitors. M. Stolypin, himself, had an instant before stepped out of the room.

The explosion, which was louder than the report of a cannon, tore out a large section of the front wall of the villa, demolished the partition walls inside and brought the upper story down in clouds of mortar and splintered wood.

Of the four conspirators who engineered the outrage, two were killed with their victims, while the third, who acted as coachman for the party, and the fourth, who remained inside the carriage, were badly wounded and are now in the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress.

People were literally blown to pieces. Those who were not killed instantly were horribly maimed or lacerated, and all the others present were prostrated by the shock. Pieces of flesh and clothing clung to the shattered rafters overhead and some lodged in the branches of the elm trees which border the roadway separating the premier's residence from the river.

Torpedo Kills a Boy.

Phillipsburg, N. J., Aug. 27.—Herman Price, a boy of 7, son of John Price, found a railroad torpedo and struck it with a stone. An explosion followed, and a fragment of the torpedo went through the child's heart, killing him instantly.

Radford, Va., Aug. 27.—Dr. John W Farmer, one of the oldest physicians and citizens of this place, was fatally injured by a wagon load of lumber being overturned on him. He was removed to a local hospital, where he died later in the day.

CONSUMPTION'S WARNING

Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. G. G. GREEN.

The aid of scientific inventions is not needed to determine whether your lungs are affected. The first symptoms can be readily noted by anyone of average intelligence.

There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the congestion of the bronchial tubes and the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration.

But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some People Know How to Save. It.

Many Bellefonte people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. W. R. Camp, of the firm of Kirk-Camp Furniture Co., Logan Ave. and 14th St., Tyrone, Pa., says: "Experience has taught me that Doan's Kidney Pills is an excellent remedy and one that strictly fulfills its promises. In the fall of 1897 I gave for publication in our local papers a statement covering my experience with this remedy and recommending it to others, and now in the month of June, 1904, I just as enthusiastically recommend it as I did at that time. Doan's kidney pills completely relieved me of an aching in the small of my back and lameness through the loins due to kidney trouble. We always keep this preparation in the house for use in case of need, and it has never failed to give splendid satisfaction. I heartily endorse it.

TRADE REPORTS GOOD

Dun's Say Activity Continues With No Signs of Reaction

FALL TRADE OPENS BRISKLY

Idle Machinery Gradually Resumes as Vacation Season Ends—Iron Production Will Break All Records. Crops Nearly Beyond Danger.

New York, Aug. 25.—R. G. Dun & Company's Weekly Review of Trade says: Wall street provided the only important development in the business situation during the past week, prices of securities rising within an average of $2 per share of the high record established last January, while the general public became interested to an extent that lifted money rates for all periods to the legal maximum. Trade reports indicate wholesome activity, with no evidence of reaction, even these industries that are of necessity quiet at this season contributing to the general confidence by reports of large orders in sight. As the vacation season draws to an end there is a gradual resumption of idle machinery, and, with the opening of many new furnaces, all records of iron production will be surpassed in the fall. Yet steel mills will require all the material that can be furnished. This is typical of the situation in all leading branches of industry. Jobbing fall trade is opening briskly, 362 buyers registering in the New York market alone in a single day. Owing to a few exceptionally large undertakings last year in this city, the total value of all building permits issued in July was slightly smaller than a year ago, but outside of New York there was a heavy increase. Crops are now almost beyond danger, and their movement is becoming a difficult traffic problem.

Pig iron prices at Philadelphia are advancing, and it is difficult to secure prompt deliveries, while steel mills receive liberal orders. At Reading manufacturers are fully employed. Jobbing trade at Pittsburg is fairly active; but collections are not prompt.

Baltimore reports wholesale trade very active, and liberal orders are going to Richmond. Political activity has interrupted Atlanta trade somewhat, and collections are backward. Manufacturing is active and collections fair at St. Louis. Kansas City reports retail trade fair and jobbing houses doing a good business. At New Orleans the movement of dry goods, notions and shoes is heavy, while future orders are satisfactory.

Chicago's strong business position is well sustained. Raw material markets are strong and active and transportation very heavy. Retail trade is dull at Cincinnati, but wholesale dry goods sell well. Trade is good for the season at Cleveland. Omaha shipments increase, and the fall outlook is bright. All lines of trade are active at Minneapolis, but collections are slow. St. Paul business is satisfactory and collections prompt for this time of year. Retail trade is active at Portland, Ore., but wholesale business more quiet.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 25. — Mrs. Charles Kline, wife of a Baltimore & Ohio railroad brakeman, was killed in a strange manner at Sandy Hook, this county. Investigation showed that an electric light wire had fallen across the telephone wire during a storm a short time before.

New York, Aug. 25.—Thomas A. Stewart, 54 years old, proprietor of a general store in Claremont, Va., is missing and the local police have been asked to look for him. Mr. Stewart came here on August 7 to buy supplies. He registered at the Broadway Central. He was around for two days and then disappeared. In a letter to his wife, during his known presence here, he complained of the heat and said he would probably stop a few days at some resorts. Detectives who have searched the different beaches have been unable to locate him.

NEGRO LYNCHED

Hanged and Riddled With Bullets For Trying to Enter White Man's Home.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. —Willie Spain, a negro, 21 years old, was shot to death by a mob near St. George, Dorchester county. S. L. Connor, manager of the Dorchester Lumber company's stores at Badham, was notified by a negro that he saw another negro attempting to enter a window of Connor's home and then hide in a cane patch. Conner started for his home, going through the cane field. He suddenly came upon Spain. He struck the negro a severe blow, breaking several bones in his hand. The negro finally freed himself and ran into a woods. About two hours later Spain was captured in a negro cabin. He was brought to St. George and turned over to Sheriff Limehouse, who locked him in jail. Shortly afterwards 40 or 50 men went to the sheriff and demanded the keys of the jail. Securing the keys, the jail was unlocked and the negro taken to the house of Connor, where his 11-year-old daughter, who was alone in the house, positively identified the negro as the one who tried to climb through the window, but was frightened away by her screams. The mob strung Spain to a limb and shot about 500 bullets into his body.

HOLDS HOUSE FOR HER WAGES

Woman Claims Property as Reward For Nine Years' Services.

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 27.—Unmoved by argument or threats, Margaret Gourley holds possession of the three-story brick dwelling on Van Houten street which was the home of the late Robert McCulloch, and she declares that nothing except physical force will make her leave.

Mrs. Gourley for nine years was housekeeper for McCulloch. She alleges that during that period she never received any wages. She maintains McCulloch told her that in his will he would leave her the house and $10,000 in cash. McCulloch died a few days ago, and when his will was read it was found that only $500 had been left to Miss Gourley.

McCulloch, who had a store here, left an estate of about $250,000. The original will was made 35 years ago, but there were a number of codicils.

After the reading of the will the family demanded that Miss Gourley vacate the premises, but she only laughed at them. A constable has been posted outside of the house with instructions to lock the door in case Miss Gourley should leave.

Miss Gourley has consulted a firm of lawyers and has instructed them to prepare papers in a suit against the estate to recover wages for nine years' services and to secure the title to the Van Houten street house.

"The Proud Prince."

The fact that Mr. Porter J. White the tragedian is to appear under the Nixon & Zimmerm banner this and the next four years will prove to be a source of gratification to his many friends who have watched his career with interest. Mr. White has selected "The Proud Prince" as his vehicle for the present season, and it will no doubt prove a pleasure to him to be surrounded by a strong cast, and such a production as Nixon & Zimmerman have given him. "The Proud Prince" is a play which has been seen in the large cities, but never before in the so-called night stand towns and its coming should prove a decided event in local theatricals. E. H. Southern first brought the play out and added greatly to his reputation therein, also creating a genuine sensation, for the play is a most powerful one, and at first blush would seem to be sacriligious. Such is not the case however, and never has the power of the church, the belief in the Supreme Being, and the punishment of the blasphemer been more powerfully set forth than in "The Proud Prince." Rebero The Bad, King of Sicily, is the central figure of the play, a man at once, young, handsome, steeped to the core in vice, licentious to a degree, and cruel beyond words to describe. His pursuit of Perpetua, an innocent mountain maid is brought to a sudden termination by a most tragic occurence which deprives him of his throne and his good looks at one fell swoop. After a period of suffering he is permitted to return to his former shape and power, but not until his reformation is complete. "The Proud Prince" is announced as an early attraction in our city.

Stood Before Mirror, Blew His Brains Out.

William L. Carskadden of Williamsport committed suicide by blowing his brains out with a 18-calibre revolver.

Carskadden was a railroad engineer but had worked very little this summer on account of ill health. He had many times threatened to kill himself.

At 9 o'clock that evening he was in his bedroom and his wife had been with him. She went down stairs, leaving him alone, and almost simultaneously with her departure a shot rang out. The wife knowing its terrible portent, called her mother. Mrs. George Russell, who called to her husband. Mr. Russell had been on the porch and heard the shot. He ran to the bedroom finding Carskadden stretched on the floor before a bureau mirror, blood and brains in a pool under his head and the revolver by his side.

The deceased was 45 years old and is survived by his wife. He was a brother of T. F. Carskadden, the tailor, and John W. Carskadden, a Jersey Shore barber. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

Speak Distinctly.

Why in the world more women don't study the art of articulation and learn to speak so that the average mortal can hear without being screamed at is a question which is agitating one woman's club just now to a great extent.

It is a subject which most women would do well to consider, both as applied to their own tricks of speech and to the training of children, says the Philadelphia North American.

As frequent a fault as a shrill voice, or one that lacks the soft modulations which, like the "low voice," are "excellent things in women," is the habit of saying all your words apparently in your throat; of mumbling, or talking so rapidly—a sign of "nerves"—that it is difficult for any one to understand without asking for a repetition—a thing every one dislikes to do.

If mothers and teachers alike insisted upon careful enunciation of words and sentences by children the habit of speaking distinctly would be as easily established as its reverse is hard to break.

—No man ever got rich by trying to make others believe he was "The only," or the only one who knew anything. You cannot climb the ladder to success by treading on others' corns. Keep off the corns and don't knock. You're not the only. There are others, and they have brains, and know something as well as you do.

—It is interesting to note the extent to which St. Swithin's day superstition was carried out. Sunday, July 15th, was St. Swithin's day, and as it rained on that day, the popular notion was that there would be rain on every one of the succeeding forty days which ended last Friday. As a matter of fact, from a careful record kept, there was rain on just twenty-four of these days from July 15th to August 24th. St. Swithin more than half had his way.

—The Pennsylvania railroad has donated to Pennsylvania State College for experimental and instruction purposes one of its D-8 passenger locomotives. The engine has been completely overhauled and placed in first class condition for the college mechanical laboratory. It will be used in tests on the Bellefonte Central railroad by students of the college under Prof. A. J. Wood. The work of the mechanical department is to be extended to include additional studies in mechanical railroad engineering.

—The life of a newspaper man is not all roses. If he pleases one faction he displeases the other. He is accused of saying too much about someone and too little about another. If he suggests a remedy for any political or social evil a large part of the community is profuse in its expressions of disapproval, because some "good fellow" may be exposed in his wrong doing. So he taxes his weary brain to escape the shoals that mean ship wreck to so many editors.

—A colonel and a captain were shooting together. The colonel walked some distance in advance of the captain. Suddenly a flock of birds arose, and the captain, letting drive, spattered shot all about his superior officer. The captain hastened forward shouting his apologies. The colonel, with a grim smile, picked a shot out of his arm and said, "Look here, what are you out after today? Partridges or promotion?"—Pearson's Weekly.

—Jacob Test, one of the oldest residents of Philipsburg, who in the early rafting days made many trips down the river to Port Deposit, Md., concluded he would like to take a similar trip, and in company with his young nephew, Joseph Middleton, has started in a small boat known as the "Mountaineer," which he had previously rigged up in shape. If successful in reaching his destination in Maryland Mr. Test expects to sell his boat and with his nephew return home by rail.

HELD FOR ILLEGAL FISHING.

Three Boys Get Heavy Sentence for Dynamiting Spring Creek.

On Saturday last a State Fish Warden arrived in Bellefonte and placed under arrest three boys, Fred Haupt, Boyd Meyere and William Miller charged with illegal fishing. The offense was committed sometime last Spring and consisted in dynamiting Spring Creek for fish. The lads who are between 16 and 18 years of age were given a hearing this morning at 10 o'clock before Justice of the Peace John M. Keichline.

After hearing all the evidence in the case they were found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $100.00 each and to undergo imprisonment in the county jai for a period of six months.

The fish wardens are trying hard to break up illegal fishing and if people can't fish right they ought to let the streams alone.

Heaton--Watson.

Orin N. Heaton and Sarah J. Watson both of Milesburg were united in the bonds of matrimony by Rev. A. C. Lathrop on Wednesday evening Aug. 23nd, 1906 at 6 o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom in the nicely furnished home provided by the groom and where they at once will begin housekeeping.

The best man was Homer Noll and the bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Swartz. The bride was beautifully gowned in a suit of steel mohair. The groom wore the conventional suit. After the ceremony the company proceeded to the dining room and joined in the festivities of the sumptous wedding feast.

Many beautiful and useful presents were bought as an expression of the regard in which the young couple are held. Both bride and groom are well known and highly esteemed for their personal integrity, amiable social qualities and many other excellencies. The congratulations of hosts of friends are being extended. Among the guests present at the wedding was the great-grand-mother of the groom, Mrs. Rachel Walker.

Smith—Miller

Amid the excitement of Thursday it sounds rather incredible to say that anything quiet happened. The only thing we know of that did was when Miss Gussie Smith was quietly married to Mr. Fred C. Miller at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Smith, on Spring street. No attempt at anything that savored of a function was made as the decorations were very simple and the guests only the family and a few immediate friends. The bride had no attendants and was dressed in white Paris muslin. The ceremony was said by Rev. James Stein, of the M. E. church, after which a wedding breakfast was served and a very pleasant time had before the departure of the bride and groom on the 4:40 train for Warren, Ohio, their home Miss Smith, whose engagement was announced in the early summer, is one of our most attractive young girls, a graduate of the High school and was organist in the Methodist church. Mr. Miller, whose home is in Walton, N. Y., is a graduate of Princeton, class of '04 and has been an instructor at the Bellefonte Academy the past year. He now holds a position in the High school, Warren, Ohio.

A Communication.

TO THE EDITOR REPUBLICAN

In last evening's issue you make a retraction of an item reported in the proceedings of our Borough Council, Monday evening. That such an action should have been taken and was, in every way, highly proper, is self evident.

If I am correctly imformed the Mayor has full authority, at all times, to order the removal of all posters that in any way appear improper. The bill-boards of our town are at the present time a moral stench in our community and an immoral training school for our sons and daughters.

In the name of common decency I desire to protest against the posting of any and all such bills; and wherever the authority is lodged, call on the authorized powers for the immediate removal of these posters.

The Council of Chester, Pa., took very drastic action against the same posters last Monday night. The next morning Mayor Crothers sent his patrolmen forth to tear down the objectionable posters.

Yours for Moral Cleanliness.

AMBROSE M. SCHMIDT.

Child Ate Tablets; Died of Poisoning.

Sunday the two-year-old daughter of William Saxon, of Barclay, who was visiting its grandmother, Mrs. Saxon, about two miles above Roaring Branch, got possession of a box of herb tablets. Before being discovered it had eaten several, evidently mistaking them for candy. A short time afterward convulsions developed. Dr. Castleberry of Roaring Branch was summoned and found the child suffering from symptoms of strychnine and belladonna poisoning.

Although every effort was made to save the child it died a few minutes after the doctor's arrival.

Sudden Death From Injury.

Aaron Long, at Penns Cave, was found dead in bed by his wife early Sunday morning. About ten days ago, Mr. Long was kicked in the left side of his body by a horse he was grooming. At first he experienced considerable pain, but in a few days nothing more was thought of the injury.

Saturday morning Mr. Long was not feeling well, and toward evening he experienced pain in the region of the stomach and to aleviate it retired to bed. During the night his good wife observed that he was restless, and offered to apply remedies, but Mr. Long thought there was little matter. Toward morning, there was a repetition of restlessness, and later he became quiet.

About daybreak Mrs. Long arose to perform her household duties, and when these were well on, she went to the bed side of her husband to make inquiry as to his wants. In the meantime death had come, there was no more earthy wants.

Mr. Long was aged about sixty year, and besides a widow leaves four children.

Interesting Child Dead.

Josephine, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Irvin Clark of Marsh Creek, near Blanchard, died at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon after an illness of several weeks of typhoid fever. For several days her life had hung in the balance but the scales were turned by the Great Hand on High where she was needed for a higher and better purpose. Josephine was an exceptionally bright, interesting child of a sunny disposition that endeared her to countless friends, old as well as young. She was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Sunday school and a pure, christian little girl. The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the parents, brothers and sisters in this climax of their trouble and affliction caused by the disease which blotted out this young life—typhoid fever. Two other daughters lie prostrated by the disease, but their condition is encouraging.

Besides her parents Josephine is survived by three brothers and sisters: Henry, George, Nora, Ruth and Hazel.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

A Stranger in our Midst Writes of our Town and People.

George W. Slauson, a sewing machine repairer who is now in Bellefonte writes the following interesting letter which was published in the Sewing Machine Times of August 25th, 1906

"After a six months' sojourn in my home city, I am again on the wing, and find myself pleasantly located for a season in the charming borough of Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., with an office on Bishop street nearly opposite the Singer Sewing Machine Company's place of business. The Singer manager Mr. Johnson, is a new convert to the sewing machine trade, having graduated between four and five years ago from an Atlantic and Pacific tea wagon, with headquarters at Mansfield, Pa., where I last met him while on an adjusting trip to that place five years since, and there is no doubt but that the schooling he got in the tea business soliciting orders from day to day, has been no small factor in his later success as a sewing machine salesman. Renewing the acquaintance I have found him to be a whole souled gentleman with no trace of the petty jealousies that too often come between men in the different branches of the trade.

I have scarcely had time as yet to feel the business pulse of the community, although my office windows are already graced with a number of machines awaiting the adjusters manipulations, that they may again take their place in the economy of the households, from which, for a time, they have been exiled.

Bellefonte is builded on a succession of hills, so undulating that scarcely a block of the borough, but like "Micawber" has its ups and downs, in fact nothing short of a bird's eye view of the place could give one an adequate idea of it as a whole. However it has many fine residences with beautiful grounds suggesting wealth, culture and thrift in a marked degree. The population of Bellefonte is about 5,000, which supports one daily and four weekly newspapers. Its manufactures in the main are pig iron and lime, the latter industry having brought the place into prominence for many years —the product of the kilns having been shipped to every State in the Union.

The borough has a splendid system of water works—the supply is inexhaustible and capable of furnishing a half dozen such places with Aqua Pura. Its source is a magnificent spring located almost in the heart of the city; which discharges 14,000 gallons of water per minute, the overflow of which prppels a large Turbine wheel, which in turn drives a system of pumps, which elevates the water on the top of a near by hill into the main reservoir from whence it discharges into the city mains for general distribution. Chemical analysis shows the water to be practically pure. The lower reservoir at the pump station is some fifty feet in diameter and ten feet deep with a bottom of gray sand; it is stocked with a number of mammoth trout who haunt the shores at eventide or whenever people congregate there, awaiting the generous crumbs that are sure to be thrown them.

The one thing of which Bellefonte is rightfully proud is the quota of noted men she has furnished the commonwealth, notably Curtin, Beaver and Hastings, all of whom were Governors of the State The former Andrew Curtin, being her famous war Governor, whose name will last as long as history records the lives of good men and true. As a fitting memorial for this her illustrious son, through a State appropriation of $10,000 and a popular subscription of $35,000 additional a splendid bronze statue of the Governor has been erected on Court House Square, which in conjunction with a semi-circular collonade of marble bearing bronze tablets, with the name of every soldier of Centre county, from the revolution to the Spanish American war (?) inscribed thereon, makes a most beautiful and unique memorial.

Politics are forging to a white heat these days in the Keystone State. The papers being already filled with criminations and re-criminations till one who reads and believes it all, would judge all men to be rogues.

Would that you dwellers in Gotham, who are doubtlessly gasping for breath there sweltering August days, might sit beside me this beautiful evening and look out upon the mountains bathed in the afterglow of a most beautiful sunset with the breezes laden with the scent of the hemlock stealing down from the "Muncy Knob," gently fanning us into forgetfulness of the torrid mid-day, and with it all real grass to walk on, with never a sign of "keep off" in sight or a blue coated man to bid us "move on" if we loiter too long in the way. Is it a wonder that the fresh air kid, with his first experience of the kind, in the exhubrance of his spirit cried out to his fellow, "Gee! Bill—this must be heaven!"

Fraternally,

GEO. W. SLAUSON.
